WILLIAM HENRY SMART

William Henry Smart was born April 6, 1862, at Franklin, Idaho, son of Thomas Sharratt and Ann Hayter Smart, the tenth child in a family of sixteen.

William at an early age had a burning desire to serve, not himself, but his fellow-man, and to him money was only a means to an end. He was not strong physically, but very studious and entered the School of Deseret. After graduation he went to Cornell. In both schools he worked his way through. He returned to teach school at the Brigham Young College in Logan on September 1, 1883. In 1886 he, with his father, filled a mission to England with the express purpose of gathering genealogy, and in so doing they took every advantage that they could to preach the gospel to their relatives and friends.

After his return from the mission he again taught school at the Brigham Young College in Logan. While thus engaged he met and married Anna Haines, daughter of Isaac David and Elizabeth Highfield Haines, born the 11th of October, 1867, at Gainsville, Ohio. Anna's parents were converts to the Church. She had been reared in wealth and refinement and was well educated, bearing a strong testimony of the gospel. She, with her family, gave up much for the Church. William and Anna were married in the Logan Temple on October 3, 1888.

One year after their marriage, William was called on a mission to Palestine, in the Holy Land. The forepart of this mission was spent in Turkey and the latter part in London, England. After returning home, he again taught school in Logan and Franklin.

William was set apart as a missionary April 11, 1898, to the Eastern States Mission, serving in that capacity until March 11, 1899, at which time he was called to succeed President Alonzo P. Kesler as president of the mission. William's wife, Anna, joined him at this time in the mission field.

On February 10, 1901, he was called to preside over Wasatch Stake of Zion, being ordained a High Priest at the same time. Joseph R. Murdock and James C. Jensen were selected as his counselors.

In 1906, William was called to preside over the Uintah Stake of Zion. On September 14, 1910, William H. Smart became the first president of Duchesne Stake, then on June 27, 1920, he was chosen as the first president of the newly created Roosevelt Stake.

William was one of the first directors of the Beneficial Life Insurance Company; one of the founders of the Smart & Webster Livestock Co. of Rexburg, Idaho, and its president and general manager; one of the organizers and first president of the Heber Mercantile Co.; the first president of the Wasatch Wave Publishing Co.; a director of the Utah National Bank of Salt Lake City, Utah; one of the organizers and directors of the Salt Lake Knitting Works; one of the organizers of the Roosevelt Realty Co. and the Roosevelt Mercantile Corporation; and organizer and chief proprietor of the Duchesne Record Publishing Co.

The last three years of his life he spent working in the temple and in urging of his kindred to do likewise. He felt keenly the responsibility placed upon him by his father in regard to genealogical and temple work and did all he could throughout his life to stimulate this work in the Smart family.

William died December 7, 1937, of pneumonia. His wife, Anna, followed him one year later, on December 24, 1938.

1899 to 1899; George T. Harbour, 1899 to 1900 and James H. Moulton, 1900 to 1901.

The accomplishments of President Hatch during the period were legion in religious, civic, business and political capacities. His services will always stand as the backbone of early development and solidarity in the county.

With the release of President Hatch, Church officials appointed President William H. Smart to lead Wasatch Stake. Like President Hatch, the new stake leader was not a native of Provo Valley, but was called by the general authorities to move into the area and preside over the stake. Before coming to Heber, President Smart lived in Franklin, Oneida County, Idaho. His father had pioneered the Idaho community, which was the first white settlement in Idaho.

In addition, many new civic ventures were undertaken, including the establishment of the first bank in Heber, a business firm known as the cantile and many new irrigation projects.

In 1903, two years after he had been called as leader, President Smart undertook the first extensive reorganization within the valley.

Three wards were created in Heber from the former Edwards wards and became known as the Heber First, Second and Third. Midway was divided into two wards, Midway First and Second. Daniels and Buysville were joined, making Daniel Ward. Lake Creek and Buysville were joined as the Center Ward, while Elkhorn Dale were annexed to Heber Second Ward. Francis, Bench Woodland were transferred to Summit Stake. In addition to the organization of bishoprics, the stake auxiliary organizations changed and strengthened.

Two years later, with his calling and assignment in Heber successfully completed, President Smart was called by the authorities to move eastward and become president of Uinta Vernal. He was released in a stake conference on August 2. Joseph R. Murdock, his first counselor, was sustained as the Wasatch Stake President.

Chosen as counselors to President Murdock were James and Edward D. Clyde, with John P. McGuire as clerk. McGuire moved to Provo, Alfred T. Bond and then George I. were called as stake clerks. Succeeding Mr. Jorgensen was Broadbent who served until 1919 when he was called as a President Murdock. Charles N. Broadbent was then sustained. Other counselors to President Murdock during his 22 years were Henry Ray Hatch and G. Frank Ryan.

President Murdock was the first native son of Utah to Wasatch Stake. He spent his whole life and effort to build and forward its progress. His first concern was the people of the stake and their spiritual welfare. His release as president March 11, 1928.

David A. Broadbent was called to be the next president
